Holly:

The letter informing the Legislative Rules Committee that the DEQ is intending to amend rules went out today.

The full notice will go onto our website tomorrow and the paper notice will run August 19 through the 25.

The hearing will be October 12 and we will take comment until the Oct 23.

Then the real fun starts – Ammonia!

A.Gs

Second run at rules committee (that is always rewarding)

My desire is to someday have a rule that everyone likes.

Pete

Dear Holly:

We have not begun using the tool yet. Joe Nett can.

Hi Pete, I hope all is well and that your weekend was phenomenal!

I just heard that EPA's Office of Water is close to rolling out several tools they're working on, including the ammonia variance tool (R-shiny app) (https://yuchenw.shinyapps.io/VarTool_V8_V1/)

My question is whether NDEQ is interested in using the tool right away - or have you already started to use the tool even though it's still being tweaked?

Mario asked because they don't want to unnecessarily delay sharing the tool if any states or tribes have an immediate need or have already started using the tool.

Thanks,
Holly
